

Interactive Session with Dutch PhD Researcher at SIPG, NSU

SIPG had an interactive session on March 5th and March 12th with the PhD students of University of Amsterdam. SIPG Professors are jointly supervising these students of University of Amsterdam who are doing research on Rohingya crisis. The session focused on his research project “The Construction of a Rohingya Visual Archive,” exploring how Rohingya photographers in Cox’s Bazar refugee camps use smartphones and social media to document their lived realities and shape their own narratives.
